

DISCLAIMER

Degeneration advocates tolerance and international understanding. The game world of Degeneration has evolved from ours and been distorted into an imaginary future. Conflicts within the game world are, of course, not real – and we do not wish for them to be, either. They only exist for excitement’s sake. Although we know this kind of conflict from films and media, we urge you to use them with caution.

None of the seven Cultures mentioned in Degeneration is better than any of the others. All of those Cultures have an equal right to exist in the game world of Degeneration. We have actively avoided the term “race” common to RPGs as we deem it discriminatory. We strictly oppose violence and racism. Illustrations of combat action are not meant to promote violence, but to depict a cruel world we should strive to overcome. Culture and civilization are the major goals in Degeneration, accompanied by hope.

We still recommend Degeneration for people 16+ as we cannot be sure whether our message and our appeal to humanity will be understood.

THEMES

Degeneration explores all kinds of human vices and activities, including all of the “cides” and “isms”, all forms of sexual conduct, mental, physical, and sexual abuse, slavery, body and psychological horror, drug abuse, strong language, religious and ideological intolerance, suicide, violence, blood, death, and anything in between, on a WHOLLY FICTIONAL LEVEL.

Degeneration doesn’t endorse or promote these topics, nor does it propose them as something that should be aspired to. It simply acknowledges the existence of these themes as an aspect of human behaviour, which therefore have been part of every mythology and every story written since the dawn of time.
